

Registration Chats for New Students

Online registration chats will be held in the week before registration begins in June and then twice a week throughout the remaining registration period for new students. Please join us for a chat at anytime to ask a question or just to listen in and perhaps find the answer to your question along the way. Though the online curriculum guides answer many registration-related questions, the chats provide a great opportunity to get answers to any remaining questions about registration mechanics, course placement, degree requirements or any other related concerns.

The chart below shows the full schedule. The first chats, in the week before registration begins, are staffed by both Registrar staff and members of the faculty with particular advising expertise. Any question can be asked at any chat session and most of the chatter in any session will cover general topics, but if you have particular questions in any of the following areas, you'll have experts to consult in that first week if you happen to be available then:

- Language study or the language requirement → first chat (June 2)
- Math placement or courses → second chat (June 4),
- Science placement or courses → third chat (June 6)
- Pre-med or any other pre-health study → the second or the third (June 4 or 6).

To enter the chat room, go to this link at any point during one of the scheduled chats:

<http://www.mtholyoke.edu/go/junereg>. (If you do not have the most recent version of Java on your computer you will need to install it before you can join the fun. Be sure pop-ups are unblocked before you attempt to install the software.)

1. Enter a self assigned username.

Most students just use their first name with the first letter of their last name tacked on, but students who think they may want to reveal more personal information, such as their AP scores, are advised to pick a more anonymous username and/or to ask a chatter to answer their question via email, rather than through the public chat session forum.

2. Click the Connect button.
